It was a very busy end of 2014 and as we start the new year, we will take this opportunity to update you on some of the activities of the Embassy since our last newsletter.

2015 promises to be a special year as we celebrate 40 years of diplomatic relations between Ireland and Mexico. A special programme of cultural events is being organised in Mexico and in Dublin to mark the occasion.

I hope that many of you can join us at the various events being planned this year.

'Jewellery Box': an exhibition by Daragh Muldowney at Parque de Chapultepec

For the coming month an exquisite collection of images from the rock-pools of Ireland can be found at Chapultepec Park. Nature photographer Daragh Muldowney travelled to all 17 coastal counties of Ireland to find hidden treasures. Describing his work, Muldowney says "I see the ocean as a veil and at low tide this veil is lifted to allow us a chance to have peep at this fantastic microcosmic world. The beauty within these rock pools is like a jewelery box filled with gems and treasures in the shape of periwinkles, anemone, urchins, barnacles, starfish and seaweeds of all types.

Over one million people will view the exhibition over the coming month. You can find these beautiful images on the Calzada Juventud Heroica which links the Puerta de las Leones to the Altar de la Patria. For more of Daragh's work visit <http://dulraphotography.com/>

Celtic Horizons

The Ambassador witnessed the signing of a partnership agreement between Armando Bojórquez, Patron of Viajes Bojórquez and David Buckley, CEO of Celtic Horizons (pictured above). The new agreement signed in October will market package tours for Mexicans travelling to Ireland commencing in 2015. A reception was held in the Ambassador's residence to mark the occasion. The Deputy Head of Mission also spoke at the Cancun launch of the partnership. We look forward to seeing strong growth in Mexican tourism to Ireland

Outside Mexico

The Embassy in Mexico City also represents Ireland in Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Peru and Venezuela and works to develop the political and economic relationship between the Government and people of Ireland and each of these countries. Here is a quick summary of our key activities in these countries at the end of 2014

Colombia - Funding for OHCHR

Ambassador Hyland visited Colombia in November during which she announced a funding agreement with the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) to support the work on human rights in Colombia.

In total, Ireland is committing $280,000 to OHCHR’s work in Nariño in southern Colombia. In a joint press conference, the Ambassador emphasised that support for human rights is a fundamental part of Ireland’s foreign policy and noted that Ireland’s own experience of conflict has created a “strong commitment” to assisting other countries on conflict resolution.

Peru

Ireland’s Minister for Communications, Energy and Natural Resources, Alex White, was in Peru in December, representing Ireland at the COP20 Climate Change negotiations. Whilst in Lima, Minister White was also able to announce an award of over 21,000 soles from Ireland’s Emigrant Support Programme to the Irish-Peruvian Chamber of Commerce. This funding will assist the Chamber to build a new web-based knowledge sharing platform. The platform is designed to assist Irish companies interested in entering the Peruvian market.

Cuba

There was a warm welcome for Irish music in Havana. Consul Barry Tumelty visited Cuba in November where there were packed crowds in the Fabrica de Arte and the Teatro Miramar in Havana as Cuba embraced the music of Mick Moloney and Athena Tergis, Niall O’Leary, Bill McComiskey and Leni Sloan. Their visit caught the imagination of both the Cuban media and public, as well as the growing number of Cuban uileann pipers.
